

SOGETI STUDIO

A local, on-demand service to help you achieve a flawless digital customer experience

As your users become increasingly ruthless when it comes to quality, usability and performance, having a high quality user experience and effective underlying processes is fundamental.

Having the appropriate development skills, carrying out thorough testing across multiple browsers and devices, undertaking in-depth research into how your users interact with your application, and evaluating and using best-of-breed tooling are all needed to achieve this. However, all of these activities involve significant investment, which many businesses find hard to justify for ad-hoc requirements.

Sogeti Studio is at hand to help. Our Studio offers local UK support to help you deliver a first rate digital customer experience; ensuring your company and brand is represented correctly through your web and mobile presence at all times.

Combined with our REWARD development service, and complementing our proven offshore mobile testing capabilities in India, Sogeti Studio provides clients with an on demand service that enables them to create stunning web and mobile applications and test those applications, across a wide range of regularly refreshed browsers, devices and application configurations.

The Studio offers access to a variety of leading paid-for and open source tools as well as proprietary frameworks. Supporting services include comprehensive user experience research, content management system testing and tool evaluations. In addition, clients can also use the Studio to deliver bespoke solutions; and thanks to comprehensive reporting dashboards you'll always be up to speed on the progress of your project.

So whether you are looking to develop an application your users will love, test new applications for the first time, or just want reassurance that your application will perform to the highest standards, book in to visit the Sogeti Studio today!

Our experience and expertise:

Sogeti has extensive proven experience in helping our clients around the globe to deliver a high quality customer experience, with better execution, and consistency across networks, desktops and other devices.

Sogeti Studio brings all of this capability onshore for those clients who tell us that offshore delivery isn't always an option, and cost savings aren't everything. Some of our local clients want close collaboration, access to local resources and devices, and the option to see their applications being developed or tested in practice. We have listened and Sogeti Studio delivers on all of these requests without breaking the bank.

A key benefit of working with Sogeti is our strong partnerships with market leading technology providers. Within Sogeti Studio we combine their world-class tools with open source options and our extensive development, testing and tool experience to deliver high quality services. Coupled with research and support from our Mobile Centre of Excellence (CoE) in India, Sogeti is especially well-placed to support your digital needs.

Sogeti Studio is part of a larger drive for innovation from Sogeti, which in the last 12 months alone has seen us expand our portfolio considerably. We are always looking to transform and improve our methods and delivery models so that we can best serve our clients' evolving requirements.
